I've spent my career helping others: first as a teacher supporting young people, and later as a lawyer tackling challenges across government, community legal services, and the private sector. Those experiences taught me how to listen, and fight for better outcomes. Now, I'm running for council to deliver real, practical solutions and support for our community.

I'll ask the right questions, and make decisions that reflect your voice. I'll listen with genuine care and my decisions will be shaped by your needs and values.

I'll be visible, approachable, and accountable.

I will fight for better infrastructure, transport, and facilities. I'll champion responsible growth, safer communities, and more opportunities for local businesses.

Your community. Your priorities. My commitment.
